Is The USPSTF Biased? Posted October 31, 2012

The 16 member board was deliberately structured without treatment advocates so it would not have to endure advocacy. This is a mistake as the competition of ideas refines the science. Particularly true for prostate cancer. Need radiation therapist and prostatectomy surgeons on board.

Over 80? Managing Your PCa

Posted October 25, 2012

An exciting class of patients. Quality-of-life, given age context, is the objective, not a primary treatment. Heart health is the first aspect of patient health that must be assessed. Then "hormonal lite" may be the only tool that fits the constraints.

Combining PCa Drugs

Posted October 17, 2012

Oncology evolved from single agents in sequence to 3 or 4 agents in combination, now with potential for cure instead of merely palliative intent. Demonstrated early in AIDS, and then Hpylori (stomach). Now applying to PCa, and androgen receptors.

Fake Drugs From Canada

Posted October 10, 2012

A collision between life saving drugs only affordable “out of country”, but now with the threat of “empty” efficacy. CanadaDrugs.com parent implicated in fake breast cancer medicine. Some of his patients have complained about ineffective generic Cialis. Chinese medicines are suspect. Be Careful: consider the sources!
